Today's Program

Kelly Henshaw, Winchester City Engineer, will update us on all of the existing and pending projects in the City, from Millwood Avenue to the redevelopment of Old Towne and the ongoing water line replacements. We'll hear firsthand what the city is doing to keep us moving forward.

Last Chance to Join the Apple Harvest Arts & Crafts Festival

The forecast (at press time) is for beautiful weather this weekend - will you spend it on the couch or joining your fellow Rotarians to eat, drink, and shop merrily? Work a two-hour shift in the parking lot or at the gate and earn a floating make-up! See Kit Molden to be a last-minute hero.

Playing Golf is Good for the Heart - Don's Heart

Make a healthy choice this Columbus day and please keep President-Elect Don in mind when you consider whether to sign up for our October 8th golf tournament at Winchester Country Club. Think what two weeks of his not having to nag will do for his mental health alone! It's also a fundraiser for the Winchester Law Enforcement Foundation.

Our Program Last Week

Sean Wohltman, the Chief Geospatial Scientist at Google, described the work he's leading (and has led) at Google through the LongView Program and through past work for the National Geospatial Intelligence Agency.

(How'd you like to have to fit that on your business card?) When Sean first began working for Google, he thought he'd be hunting terrorists, but within his first week on the job, Hurricane Katrina hit New Orleans and his work quickly shifted to helping coordinate relief services. The relief workers in New Orleans were using antiquated systems, resulting in such delays in information gathering that lives were literally being lost due to slow download speeds. That experience energized Sean to use Google's resources to make mapping and other essential services more efficient and effective.

Google now has an entirely independent outreach group (www.google.org) that coordinates services such as People Finder app to help disaster victims and their loved ones connect after (and during) a crisis. The company has also assisted in monitoring the Afghanistan elections and crises in Haiti, Japan and the Philippines.

Health Update/Tip

Mike Foreman was coming off a ventilator Thursday last week after complications from treatment for a kidney stone. Unfortunately he had to go back on the ventilator as of Tuesday. He requests no visitors....but prayers, cards and e-mail wishes are welcome.

Tuck White is back in the ICU with an infection after having open heart surgery last Thursday. No doubt we'll hear the latest update today. In the meantime, Libba says to eat in a fancier setting as that has been shown to reduce both the speed at which people eat and the amount of food they consume. So, spare the table cloth and you'll be spoiling your spare tire!
